The Deacon Jones Award was created this year to permanently honor the legacy of DEACON JONES, who died on June 3, 2013 at the age of 74.

Seven of the awards will be from the AP. Those awards, which include AP Most Valuable Player and AP Coach of the Year, are voted on at the end of the regular NFL season by a nationwide media panel of 50 people who regularly cover the league. The ballots are tabulated solely by the AP.

The AP is providing the list of honorees to the NFL for the program, and any advertising or sponsorship on the broadcast is being handled separately and independently by the NFL. For the first time ever Microsoft Surface tablets will replace the award envelopes this year at the NFL Honors.
